Event Processing in Action By Opher Etzion, Peter Niblett

Unlike traditional information systems which work by issuing requests and waiting for responses, event-driven systems are designed to process events as they occur, allowing the system to observe, react dynamically, and issue personalized data depending on the recipient and situation.

Event Processing in Action introduces the major concepts of event-driven architectures and shows how to use, design, and build event processing systems and applications. Written for working software architects and developers, the book looks at practical examples and provides an in-depth explanation of their architecture and implementation. Since patterns connect the events that occur in any system, the book also presents common event-driven patterns and explains how to detect and implement them. Throughout the book, readers follow a comprehensive use case that incorporates all event processing programming styles in practice today.

Purchase of the print book comes with an offer of a free PDF, ePub, and Kindle eBook from Manning. Also available is all code from the book.

Johanna Land:

As a pupil exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher expected them to go to the library or even make summary for some reserve, they are complained. Just very little students that has reading's heart or real their hobby. They just do what the instructor want, like asked to the library. They go to generally there but nothing reading very seriously. Any students feel that looking at is not important, boring and can't see colorful pics on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this period of time, many ways to get whatever we would like. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Event Processing in Action can make you truly feel more interested to read.
