Cat on a Hottie's Tin Roof By Shelley Swanson Sateren

Sixth grade is about to begin, and there's no way Cathy Carlson can face it since her best and only friend has moved away. Luckily, she finds a fun new girl to fill the gap and a cool nickname to match: Cat (as in meowza!). So what's the problem? Cat is an A+ brainiac who's clueless when it comes to pop music and fashion. Stylish Cassidy is definitely not a bookworm-and she's crazy about Milo Lennox, the hottest singer around. Cat will do anything to fit in, even hide her smarts and learn to like whatever Cassidy does.

But there's a crowd, and when another savvy-dressing Milo fan joins the duo, Cat feels she'll never be able to keep up. Shana has a major attitude, and she's determined to blow the lid off Cat's cover ... unless Cat can put her brains to work and come up with the purrfect plan to meet their favorite superstar! Along the way, Cat just might find she's not such a nerd girl after all.

Editorial Review

From School Library Journal

Grade 5-7-When Cathy Carlson's best and only friend moves to Paris just before the beginning of sixth grade, Cathy is determined to shed her brainiac reputation and become cool. Clueless about pop music and fashion, she has never fit into the cliques at school. She meets a new student, Cassidy McDew, who gives her the idea of calling herself "Cat" in a step toward hiding her inner nerd. Their budding friendship is jeopardized by the arrival of another new girl, Shana, who, like Cassidy, swoons over teen singing idol Milo Lennox. When Milo's tour brings him to the Twin Cities, the girls attend the concert and, as usual, three proves to be a crowd. Shana is particularly cruel to Cat; Cat is unbelievably needy. She ends up falling through the sunroof of Milo's limousine (hence the book's title), and into his lap. She realizes that Shana is not a friend and that a best friend is someone who brings out the best in you. The book is full of puns, especially feline-related ones, and overflowing with preteen, hip jargon. The old story of peer pressure is predictably presented, and Cat is too weak a character to elicit much respect from readers. While set in the present, this bit of fluff has the feel of a '70s sitcom rerun.

Gr. 3-6. This first-person account of a self-acknowledged nerd's attempts at a makeover will ring true to anyone familiar with preteen friendship rites. Brainy Cathy's best friend has moved away, so she's ecstatic when new-girl Cassidy, with her fashionable clothes and fanaticism for hot singer Milo Lennox, actually seems friendly. Cathy pretends to like Milo and care about fashion, too, but bossy Shana sees through Cathy's pretense. The girls' dialogue and interactions are just right; Sateren's nerdy and bossy archetypes exist in every school. Cathy's struggle to be trendy is painful to witness, and readers will be very glad when she finds a song by Milo that she likes and manages to put together a stylish outfit with Cassidy's help. It's gratifying when Cathy realizes the charms of fellow nerd Greg, gets beyond Shana's bossiness, and makes friends with Cassidy on her own terms. Diane Foote
