Colouring Meaning: Collocation and connotation in figurative language (Studies in Corpus Linguistics) By Gill Philip

Primarily focused on idioms and other figurative phraseology, Colouring Meaning describes how the meanings of established phrases are enhanced, refocused and modified in everyday language use. Unlike many studies of creativity in language, this book-length survey addresses the matter at several levels, from the purely linguistic level of collocation, through its abstractions in colligation and semantic preference, to semantic prosody and connotation. This journey through both linguistic and cognitive levels involves the examination of habitual language and its exploitations, both mundane and colourful, explaining the phenomena observed in terms of current psycholinguistic research as well as corpus linguistics theory and analysis. The relationships between meaning in text and meaning in the mind are discussed at length and extensively illustrated with worked case studies to offer the reader a comprehensive overview of metaphorical and other secondary meanings as they emerge in real-world communicative situations.

Richard Powe:

As a pupil exactly feel bored to be able to reading. If their teacher requested them to go to the library or even make summary for some guide, they are complained. Just tiny students that has reading's heart and soul or real their leisure activity. They just do what the professor want, like asked to the library. They go to there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring in addition to can't see colorful photographs on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important to suit your needs. As we know that on this period, many ways to get whatever we would like. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Colouring Meaning: Collocation and connotation in figurative language (Studies in Corpus Linguistics) can make you truly feel more interested to read.
